The contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor seems to be made up, and with that issue settled many are now announcing for the other places on the ticket. Thomas S. Rhea, the last to enter, has met with much encouragement, his friends claim, and Senator Selden R. Glenn, the best and smoothest organizer in the State, will handle his campaign. Lieut. Gov. Black has not yet opened headquarters, but reports show that he has already built a substantial organization in every district. Col. P. J. Noel, of Harrodsburg, is a was a surprise candidate for the Republican nomination, but is receiving wide advertisement. Judge John D. Carroll is receiving the support of the legal fraternity and C. E. Brown is one of his most active handlers and backers. Lieutenant W. H. Demahd, of Bowling Green, Ky., finally announced his candidacy, and was backed by Peter H. Hickey and Dan B. Sullivan, and an effort is being made to secure the support of the Courier-Journal and Times and the little group of hotel proprietors who helped Stanley Howell in 1912.

idday of Howdy Ed Morrow is not awakening much enthusiasm, and what little cheer there was in the crowd was quickly quenched when he was knocked out by the plan of Hert and his friends to pick their own ticket for the State offices and then say to the Republican voters in August, "the polls by a Republican voter on primary day will be a waste of time and trouble, as the Hert selections will be chosen in advance and the voters will have no choice." The selection of Hert as National Committeeman has never set very well with the old guard of the Republican party out in the State, and the fact that the delegation of McCulloch, of Owenabore, was made possible only by the half vote of a negro delegate from Hopkinsville didn't make the matter any more palatable. The old line Republicans out in the State threw up their hands when Hert selected Searcy, a fellow Louisville Republican, as State Campaign Chairman, and they say that makes the odds doubly hard against success. One is that the State is helug ignored by the Louisville bosses and the other is that the management and misfit Bolshevike administration of the Republicans here has hurt the party throughout the State.

The local Bolshevike administration follows up the joke publication which it issued some time ago under the title of "Facts" with another of similar character entitled "Big Cabin." The Court Lucas, the City Court Prosecutor, is editor of the new publication, and the editor shows wide versatility as a newman. In one column he moves you to tears by asking the voters not to please disturb near Mayor Smith and his joke administration by electing a horrid Democratic council this fall, as an opposition council might ask Smith to show why the city treasury was broke and where had all the money gone. This would sure be sad. Editor Leucas might add that if the people elected a Democratic council soon they would know that he oughtn't want to know who got all the fees the Keystone police received for copying auto accused of being out thirty-one minutes or more at a outside of Broadway and Fourth ever be cleaned before the next Mayor goes out of office. There are lots and lots of questions a Democratic or Independent council can ask, and you can hardly blame Lucas and his associates from getting scaared. But aside from that sob story, you could hardly keep from chuckling-out loud or going into hysterics when you read in the Low Cabin publication about the wonderful police we were getting with a splendid reputation. The movement we had, and an article was quoted from the Herald (written by

The press censor) complimenting the Keystone police, while the columns of the Courier-Journal and Times (Mr. Hert's boosters) were quoted in praising the fire department for always saving the ground anyway in case of fire.

After perusing the alibi publication of the Bolshevik administration and hearing in mind the wonderful and mysterious "burning out" of the "Yap Keystoneers" the writer and some friends hoarded a Seventh street hall park car to see the Louisville-Pittsburgh game.

In the case of the occurrence here, it had a real fire department to do some grateful corporation or individual send a check for the added services of the department, but you never hear of anything like that now. On the contrary, some of the members of the Pension Board ought to send a check to the people who have lost their property through the fault of the "hick" from the Keystone police department for the few good police officers who are left and real regime of Paul Hargrave, formerly of Jeffersonville, now head of the Board of City, while crime and gambling takes space. The outside press is beginning to take notice of the Keystone comedy police in Louisville and the old town is getting a kinder right and real about its funny cops. Police Capt. Dick Hindley, of the Sixth district, put the official O. At the annual meeting of the Covington Diocesan Union of Holy Name Societies, held at the Cathedral Lyceum, the following officers were elected: President, Hon. M. T. Shine; Vice President, James Burbridge; Recording Secretary, Leo Koelker; Financial Secretary, William Vessel; Treasurer, John Colopy; Marshal, Joseph A. Cassidy. The next meeting will be held in June, and the annual convention, the annual rally which will take place next September, will be decided.

PARABLE TO POINT LESSON.

Early in March there was held in Rome an important meeting of Catholic Action under the direction of the "Popular Union Among Italian Catholics," and the representatives assembled sought and received the privilege of an audience with His Holiness at the conclusion of their work. The record of their consultations does not differ much from those of past meetings, but the present circumstances are eminently such as make for an understanding among those here who have the responsibility of directing Catholic Action on the lines laid down by the Holy See, and of establishing their programme. That has been done, for the results we shall have to wait; but meanwhile the Holy Father laid special emphasis in his address on two points in such programme.

His Holiness used, as he so often does, a parable to point his lesson; this time the parable of the sower. The husbandman is never so happy as when he sees the seed he has sown fall in good ground. He knows the present work of the Unione Popolare was to him the proof that the seed he had sown, when he asked those directors of Catholic Action to cooperate with him in social restoration here, had fallen on good ground and gave promise of fruit. The many activities to which the United Brotherhood attached its hand His Holiness selected for special mention and praise those regarding the school and the condition of the working classes: the one could represent the sustenance of society, the other to be, inasmuch as it is that which is being formed by the children of the future, have just the amount of good in it to represent the education that the children of today receive. Pre-eminent then the importance that the children of the future should be brought on principle of religion and well doing. To that end is required the generosity of the rich, patience on the part of the teachers, care on the part of the parents. The basis of education today may result

"And the working classes, who form such an important part of society—do they not deserve special attention on the part of all who are trying to promote its interests? They deserve it for their own sakes alone and on account of the tragedy which they are fast becoming. The workman can not be ignorant that the church has always looked on him with special affection. In our own days a Pontiff of glorious memory took up the cause of the workman and upheld his just claims. But it would be a great mistake to think that with the death of Leo XIII. there was an end to the protection of the working classes by the church. Our immediate predecessor proclaimed its continuance in solemn documents, and we gladly take the occasion given us by this great assembly of Catholics to declare that the Encyclical 'Rerum Novarum' maintains today all its old strength, because it expresses today, too, the maternal benevolence and the watchful care of the church for the working classes.

"We turn then to the promoters of Catholic Action, who have listened to our call to work with us, and with the keenest interest we exhort them to turn their special attention, their special care, towards the working classes. This is not the time to descend to details or to treat the question of professional unions or Christian syndicates; it is enough, beloved children, to know that both organizers and organized are close to the heart of the Pope. The day is big. The day of the week that is given on the morning of the same day to the parish priests of Rome and the Lenten preachers. The text of His Holiness's sermon to them this year was St. Paul's salutation to Timothy, "Man of God." At the close of the audience the preachers will read the Easter message before the Viceregent of Rome, Mgr. Ballo. The

That sympathy for Ireland is growing in France is evidenced by the fact that two more of the liberal papers have begun to discuss the claims of Erin to freedom. The Bataille, official organ of the French trade union movement, has called upon all French lovers of liberty to uphold Ireland's claims; and La Populaire, a Majority Socialist paper, says:

"Since August, 1914, the Governments of the Allies have repeated over and over again, almost to sickening point, that this war was being fought for right and liberty, for the deliverance of oppressed nationalities, for the restoration of their sovereignty and independence. Socialists understood quite well that the 'rights of peoples to dispose of themselves' meant nothing more than a war phrase used by the weaker coalitions so as to weaken the ties that bind Ireland, which was promised the realization of her ideals under Gladstone, has now less liberty than ever."

Appropos of this same phase of the problem the Paris correspondent of the Manchester Guardian writes:

"English people at first began to realize how strong the feeling is here in regard to England and her treatment of Ireland. French papers say little, but French people think a great deal. A friend of mine who has lived in Paris for twenty years has said:

Among people of all opinions, tell me that on this point he finds no difference between extreme Nationalists and extreme Socialists. Lloyd George seems to have been well disposed of the question when he points out that Ireland sent fewer soldiers to the war than England and Scotland. The argument is not very impressive. It is plain that they find England pressing for complete independence for populations that actually fought in the Austrian war. The only course consistent with England's position is to let moral authority at the conference be to support the application of the Sinn Féiners for a hearing before the League of Nations.

Nor are the French and Italians the only Latins that are showing interest in Erin. Spaniards and Spanish-Americans are giving considerable attention to Sinn Féin and its leader, De Valera.

The people of the United States, irrespective of race and creed, still continue to show active interest in Ireland's cause. Three distinguished citizens, Messrs. Frank Walsh, Edward J. Connelley and Michael Ryan, have been designated to proceed to Paris to demand recognition of the Irish republic from the Peace Conference. Mr. Walsh, who was formerly Chairman of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, has just retired from the National War Labor Board. Mr. Dunne has been Judge of the Circuit Court of Chicago, Mayor of Chicago and Governor of Illinois, while Mr. Ryan was formerly City Solicitor of Philadelphia. Mr. Walsh thus announces the purpose of the mission:

"The committee is going to France as American citizens holding to allegiance, material or spiritual, to any other nation on earth, but imbued with the necessity of extending the principles of free government to Ireland, which is the typical small nation of the world, who have deprived the right to determine for itself the form of government under which it shall exist. Naturally men and women of Irish blood and ancestry everywhere have a deep and sentimental attachment to the land which gave birth to their race, and at this crucial moment of new world concepts desire to render all the assistance in their power to the representative of the people of Ireland delegated to attend the Peace Conference. The committee expects to remain in France until Ireland's case is fully debated at the conference.

While such things are taking place in the States, Canada is not idle. The Irish and their friends in that country are active for Ireland in many ways, evidently to the surprise of many Canadians who have been disconcerted by the appearance of the flag of the Irish republic in processions, even in Montreal, as one paper has it.

STATE POLITICS.

PLATFORM OF THOMAS S. RHEA

Candidate For Governor

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF KENTUCKY:

After mature and careful consideration of conditions existing in the Democratic party and the State, I come to you asking the nomination as the Democratic candidate for the office of Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in the primary election to be held on Saturday, August 2, 1919.

In doing so, I feel confident that should you bestow upon me this great honor, I will carry the banner of Democracy to victory in November.

It is proper that a candidate asking preferment to positions of honor and trust should inform the people concerning his views upon public questions and issues affecting their interest and the welfare of the Commonwealth.

I believe in an honest, economical administration of public affairs, and if nominated and elected Governor will endeavor to instill upon a reduction of public expense, consistent with the proper and efficient conduct of the business of the State.

I am in favor of and stand for the League of Nations.

The heart of the world awaits the final result of the conference of the allied nations at Paris, praying that it will find a way to avert such another horrible and devastating war. That there after nations may be able to adjust differences without resorting to armed conflict, and the greed of power be able to embroil nations in such a war as convulsed the earth from August, 1914, to the signing of the armistice.

A League of Nations is the only hope of this accompaniment of the peace signed by the powers will depend upon a majority of the great thought of the world is convinced, I am for a League of Nations and I will endeavor to establish such, and make it a part of the peace terms.

I am in favor of and stand for the Constitutional Amendment.

Prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of spirituous, vinous and malt or other intoxicating liquors, and the enactment of such laws needed for a rigid enforcement of the amendment.

Woman Suffrage.

I favor the enfranchisement of women under the Federal and State suffrage laws, by constitutional amendment, or otherwise, as may be needed to consummate this right.

Education.

It is of prime importance that all the children of the State should have the best school advantages possible, to the end that illiteracy be eradicated from the State; also those who have passed childhood unable to read and write be furnished the opportunity with competent instructors to do so.

Three-fourths of the children of the State live in the rural school districts and most of them are deprived of the educational advantages open to the children of the cities.

The future of our institutions, the stability of our country depends largely upon the education of the children of the rural schools. With a view of enlarging and better perfecting the facilities of rural schools, I am for an improved course of study in these schools, also for better rural schoolhouses, better equipment, better qualified teachers, with increased salaries sufficient to obtain and hold such teachers in the rural schools.

Roads.

The State road department has done a splendid work in road building, considering the hardships and obstacles it has had to contend with the few years since its creation. Believing that roads are second only to schools in upbuilding and developing the State, I favor the passage of such laws as may be needed to firmly establish a system of maintenance and road building.

Health.

The health of the people should be protected; all sanitary laws and laws to prevent the spread of disease should be enforced, and the people educated to an intelligent understanding of the necessity of the strict observance of these laws. I think that this department should be free from political influence entirely.

MADE HERE.

It is a good idea to patronize home industries and put the seal of your approbation upon them. It may not be generally known that Frank Happell, manufacturer of paints, also makes a high grade line of printers' ink, and he is the only ink manufacturer south of the Ohio river. This ink is clear, intensely black, durable and compares favorably with all others manufac-

Natural Resources.

Kentucky is one of the great fields of undeveloped natural resources in the American continent, consisting of coal, other minerals, oil, etc., in favor of laws as will promote and encourage the development of these great sources of wealth and employment of labor.

Labor.

As a natural, consistent and constant friend of labor and laboring people, I am in favor of just, fair and adequate laws safeguarding it, and their rights in all the pursuits of life.

Agriculture.

The greatest producing industry in Kentucky is farming. Agriculture is the foundation and pillar of the State's wealth and prosperity. Essentially it is the backbone of the State government and it is imperative that the government give intelligent, careful attention to this industry, and endeavor to make the Agricultural Department financially able to render all needed services to the farmers of the State.

Eleemosynary Institutions.

One of the most important functions of the State government is to take care of the poor. Eleemosynary institutions. Modern society demands that these institutions be changed from mere warehouses for the insane to modern psychopathic hospitals for the treatment of the mentally diseased. To this end I pledge, if elected Governor, to place in charge of these institutions trained men and women who will give to these wards of the State the most modern, humane and scientific treatment possible. In order that this end may be properly attained, it is my opinion that the State of Kentucky, entirely free from any kind of partiality or control.

Prison Institutions.

I am in favor of such improvements in these institutions as will bring them to a high standard of modern ideas, and also that these institutions should be free from political influence and under nonpartisan control.

Pardons.

I favor the repeal of the present parole law and in its stead, the creation of a parole board composed of the Governor, the Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals and the Attorney General, to meet on stated days, and every ninety days to pass upon application for parole.

Pardons.

The pardoning power is vested in the Governor by the Constitution and cannot be changed by legislative enactment. I pledge the people, if elected Governor, that before making up on any application for a pardon, through the aid of the Attorney General and the Commonwealth's Attorney, I will give the applicant an opportunity to be heard. The decision, either granting a pardon or refusing to do so, shall be the result of my own judgment, and I shall not be influenced by the merits of the case.

Taxation.

I stand for a just and equitable tax law. One that will distribute the burden of taxation equally upon all classes of property. This tax law placed a heavy burden upon real estate, and I will stand for relieving it. I shall stand for applying or amending this law to cure existing conditions. If neither method serves, I shall ask for its repeal.

Final.

Should I become Governor, I will put the full force and power of mind and heart in the endeavor to give the people a straight-forward business administration. I love my State; am proud and jealous of its good name; glory in its fame and glory and deem the distinction of holding the governorship of the Commonwealth of Kentucky worthy the ambition of any man. That I may have the opportunity to reach this distinction is in your province to determine at the primary. Should you select me as your nominee, I will be appreciative with a gratitude deeper than words can express; should you in your wisdom select another, you will find in me a loyal, earnest and willing worker for his success at the general election. Very respectfully, THOMAS S. RHEA.

MISSAL OF MARTYR.

In the library of the University of Wurzburg, Bavaria, is preserved a missal of the Irish saint, St. Killian, who was martyred there more than a thousand years ago.

GERMAN TORTURES COULDN'T BREAK THEM.

Harnessed to wagons like horses and worked from early dawn till late at night on rations no more substantial than thin soup, was the experience of the two American soldiers shown in picture while they were prisoners in an East Prussian camp. The men are Charles A. Gehegan, of New York, and Sergeant R. Halyburton, of Stony Point, N. soldiers.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Division 3 met last evening. Dave Reilly is out again after a severe attack of erysipelas.

As an impromptu speaker on any subject Attorney Tom Walsh ranks second to none.

John Silk, of Division 4, is on the sick list, and is going to the springs to recuperate.

People of the West End are anxious for Division 3 to give another picture entertainment. Those that have been given proved very popular.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Indianapolis will open the social season after Lent with card parties in Fountain Square and St. Joseph's Hall.

County President John H. Hennessy is preparing a complete list of the members who were in the war service to send to the National officers.

Capt. Murphy expects a number of players on the Hibernian ball team to arrive home from overseas service before the Twin City League season opens.

Division 4 adopted resolutions on the death of Mrs. John B. Meyer, a sister of Tom and John Callahan and a prominent member of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Ladies' Auxiliary 1 of South Omaha met and spent an enjoyable evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Thompson. These home gatherings are very popular in many places.

With the end of Lent the Literary and Entertainment Committee of Division 3 will again get busy. It is the intention to have some "doings" at all the meetings until warm weather sets in.

Every division would do well at this time to inaugurate a quiet but effective membership campaign. This has been done in a number of Western cities and all report their strength greatly increased.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is trying to increase to $250,000 the fund it has been collecting to erect a memorial to the Nurses of the Battlefield—the numbers of Catholic Sisters who nursed wounded and sick soldiers in the civil war. The site for it has been selected and a design has been made. Their efforts are creditable and should meet with success.

CARDINAL TO CARDINAL.

His Eminence Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium, sent the following message to Cardinal Logue: "It is inconceivable that Ireland's right to self-determination and nationhood be not recognized by the free nations of the world at the Peace Conference. Your country, the most faithful and venerable daughter of the church, deserves justice from all mankind and must surely receive it."

SERVICE CROSSES.

Hydraulic press in Philadelphia Mint turning out Distinguished Service Crosses to be conferred on our Yankee boys whose gallantry on the field of battle entitles them to wear this greatly coveted medal.

CYNTHIANA.

Mrs. Margaret Mary Linehan, fifty-two years old, died at her home in Cynthiana, following a long illness from a complication of diseases. She is survived by two sons, John, who is with the American forces in France, and Halpin, a student at Purdue University, and one sister, Mrs. John Collins, of Mason county. Her death caused a feeling of widespread sorrow throughout the city and county. The funeral was held at St. Edward's church with service by the Rev. Joseph Linagl. Burial was at St. Edward's cemetery.

WILL REQUIRE TIME.

It is reported from Washington that President Wilson upon his return to this country will issue a call for an industrial conference to be held either in Chicago or New York. The purpose of the conference will be to enable capital, labor and the Government to join hands in an amicable program for readjusting industry. It is hard to see just what such a conference can accomplish. We have already had one conference of Mayors and Governors, and it nearly broke up in a riot. Readjustment is a very complicated problem, which will require time to solve. Too much discussion and doctrinaire proposals may only serve to complicate it further.

LOCAL WOMAN'S ACTIVITIES.

The rest room and bureau of employment and information of the Women's Activities of the National Catholic War Council are located at 657 South Fourth street, on the east side, between St. Joseph's Infirmary and Broadway. Miss Camille Detert, Field Secretary, invites all women and girls, our Catholics especially, to call and to urge those looking for positions to leave their names with her. The business men of Louisville are also asked to call up the office when in need of girl or women workers. The telephone number will be 3353, both days and nights.

The assistance of our Catholic women, to have the rest room open at night and on Sunday afternoons. The entire Ladies' Board of the Visitation Home will call in a body at the rest room during the next week and will then volunteer individually as chaperones. These ladies have also offered to bring current magazines and flowers. Volunteers from other Catholic women's organizations are desired and their services will be greatly appreciated. Girls and women from out of the city are invited to make the rest room their headquarters to rest between trains or meet their friends.

CONFERENCE IN FRANCE.

Heads of the Red Cross of America, England, France, Italy and Japan are now attending a conference in Cannes, France, which is second only in importance to the meeting at Versailles, at which the League of Nations will be formed. The conference is mapping out a universal health programme to be adopted by nations of the world. Measures for handling problems of world relief in emergencies such as fires, famine and pestilence, sound ways in which the public health may be improved, and ways to relieve all human suffering and distress are being planned.

Really Good Salads.

Good results depend on the cook's ingenuity in devising unusual combinations of usual ingredients. Different salads are after all merely a question of different combinations. Here are some suggestions of combinations that may not have occurred to you, but which may prove interesting:

Tomato shells filled with chopped figs and nuts dressed with mayonnaise served on lettuce leaves or endive.

Canned pimientos beaten with cream cheese and a little mayonnaise served on lettuce leaves.

Tomatoes and diced cold boiled potatoes with mayonnaise served on lettuce.

Sliced boiled beets and slices of green peppers that have been parboiled and then sliced thin, served on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise or French dressing.

Cold butter beans, sliced hard boiled eggs and mayonnaise served on lettuce or other salad green.

Cabbage and celery chopped and combined in equal proportions, with a smaller quantity of chopped onions, served with a French dressing or a cooked dressing.

Cold cauliflower, chilled and served with French dressing and sprinkled with grated Edam cheese.

Sliced Bermuda onions, sprinkled with a little sugar and served on watercress with French dressing.

Shredded cabbage, marinated in French dressing, and served on sliced tomatoes, is a delightful spring salad.

Grape fruit and celery, mixed with mayonnaise dressing.

Parboiled green peppers, shredded, with young cabbage, shredded, chopped pickled beets, green or canned peas and mayonnaise mixed and piled in halved egg whites, hard boiled, and sprinkled with crumbed hard boiled egg yolks.

THE BOLSHIEVIST HELL.

Radicals in America and England have been charging the "capitalist press" with traducing bolshevism, while the witness of the Russian press has been lacking, owing to Lenin's refusal to allow Russian newspapers to be sent out of Russia. In time, however, they have filtered through the censorship and they give some illuminating glimpses of conditions under bolshevism. Perhaps the most significant is the following, published in a local newspaper of Bransk, where the incident occurred:

"Workmen's Soviet, Mourzlowka, Sept. 16, 1918. Order to Comrade Gregory Saveliev. The Soviet herewith gives to Comrade Gregory Saveliev full power to requisition according to his selection and on his indications, for the use of the artillery division stationed at Mourzlowka, in the District of Bransk, sixty women and young girls of the bourgeois and speculating class, and to conduct them to the barracks."

We invite our extremists to meditate upon this abhorrent fact; also all Americans, especially those inclined to listen to the preachments of our extreme radicals of the Debs and Haywood variety. Bolshevism scorns private rights, even the right to one's own body. It erects a tyranny to which nothing is sacred save its own power. It appeals to the passions and appetites of the individual and sustains its own influence by giving full license to reward those who support it. It marshals all the ungoverned forces of the most ignorant to destroy what civilized life is organized to protect—the safety of what one has worked for, the security of life, the virtue of women. Our radicals need not deceive themselves with the notion that Bolshevism in America would take any other course. Its promise is to free the proletariat, and it can gain authority only by letting loose the unthinking appetites of men. Having sowed the wind it must reap the whirlwind. Its leaders can only ride the storm by giving way to it. Control and direction are impossible. What folly it is in such a country as ours to play even with the thought of such a thing.

WITHOUT JUBILEE.

Never once during all the sessions of the recent New Jersey conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was the national prohibition amendment made a subject of jubilation. Not even was a resolution passed to prevent the rejection of prohibition by New Jersey. The reason for ignoring entirely the Methodist prohibition jubilee was due, according to the New York Times, to Edward J. Handley, Clerk of the House of Assembly:

Handley began a careful study of prohibition as it existed in Ocean Grove, Ashbury Park, Bradley Beach, Avon and other Monmouth county cities within a mile limit of Bradley, the camp meeting town. As a result of his survey Handley asserted that 87 per cent of the crime committed in Monmouth county occurred in the area where prohibition has been in force for upward of forty years, and that seven out of every ten murders that have occurred in the county have taken place within the district where prohibition holds.

This was hardly a record to give any cause for rejoicing even over a Methodist prohibition victory.

LOANED TO NURSES.

The War Council of the American Red Cross before its resignation appropriated $30,000 to be used in making loans to nurses desiring to take courses in public health nursing and in providing scholarships in certain institutions conducting courses in this work. The maximum amount to be loaned to any one nurse is $350 and the scholarships, which extend over four and eight month periods, amount to a maximum of $300 and $600 respectively. It is intended that this fund be applied to aid nurses wishing to take up public health nursing. The principal purpose in asking for this sum was to arrange for the instruction of nurses returning from abroad who wished to enter the public health nursing field. All nurses benefiting by this Red Cross scholarship fund must agree to serve for one year under the Red Cross Public Health Nursing Service.

MARRY FRENCH GIRLS.

The records of the United States Consul in Paris show that more than 4,000 American soldiers have married French girls.

LATEST IN STYLES.

Lace is bound to play a large part in our summer dresses.

Jet runs along now regularly and has found many new stations.

Dark blue serge is one of the materials returned to fashion.

Sashes are something you really can't get away from this year.

Gingham linings are among the newest ideas for summer capes and coats.

The jumble of styles is so extraordinary that any kind of skirt may pass muster.

Irish lace in particular is returning to favor in frocks for spring and summer wear.

Unbleached muslin is daringly used to line the most gorgeous and luxurious of garments.

The organdies and the pretty little dotted Swisses are to be particularly good this year.

Lace seems the April fashion yell. All are using lace, and as for gold and silver lace there is no end.

Satin seems to be again stretching itself. It appears constantly in the latest things from abroad and is used for both afternoon and evening gowns.

This spring Paris has sent some sure enough direct to the States. American women will not wear them until they are pretty thoroughly subdued.

When combined with sheer white organdy and trimmed perhaps with fluttering bands of black velvet, there is nothing more bewitching than Irish lace.

Mull and straw hats trimmed with their sheaves—real harvest home affairs—will undoubtedly be the lingerie dress obligato when real summer knocks at our doors.

INSURING OUR FIGHTERS.

When America went to war she not only raised the pay of her fighting men, the men in the ranks from $15 to $30 a month, but she made it possible for him to insure his life and his ability to support himself and his family. The amount of this war insurance ran into hundreds and hundreds of millions. The man who stood in a muddy trench knew that no matter what happened to him that his dependents would be cared for from this insurance money. He paid his premiums, it is true, but these payments were smaller than were ever asked by any insurance organization owned by private individuals. Back of this insurance policy that the soldier man and the sailor boy sent home to his folks stood the resources of the whole country. Every American dollar was back of that policy. The Liberty loans that were subscribed were backing the policies. The taxation schemes of the nation were pledged to make them good. That is why the United States is floating the Fifth Liberty loan. We made arrangements from the beginning to look after our soldiers and sailors in issuing the insurance. Those arrangements must be carried out even though it should require more and more bond issues to meet this and others of our solemn obligations.

ALABAMA KNIGHTS.

The triennial convention of the Alabama State Council, Catholic

Knights of America, was held in Montgomery, with delegates attending from all sections of the State. Of local interest was the election of Rev. Father Emmet B. Kennedy, formerly of this city but now pastor in Mobile, as State Spiritual Director, and John A. Hughes, also of Mobile but well known in Kentucky, as State Vice President. Reports showed the order in good condition and with excellent prospects for increased strength. The next convention will be held at Culman in 1922.

ARE HEALTHY LOT.

With a record of almost 50,000 men in military service, the Knights of Columbus insurance department records disclose that in proportion the number of deaths due to war have not equalled those caused by illness—chiefly influenza. Supreme Secretary William J. McGinley, who prepared a statement comparing the number of death by disease and those due to the war, congratulates the members of the order on the exceptionally good showing of the Knights' insurance department. Had not the influenza epidemic hit this country the death record, aside from those due to war, would have been the lowest in Knights of Columbus history.

HAVE KIND WORD.

A woman's influence is very great for good or evil. A kind word from a wife or a mother may stay a man from untold evil, and one sharp, bitter, thoughtless word may drive him to desperation.

A SELECT PARTY.

At a local gathering of men and women who play politics in a refined way one gentleman posed as a delegate from the Catholic Prohibition League, which society no one had ever heard of here before. Maybe the delegate is like one of the three tailors of Tooley street, having a little party of his own.

FRIEND OF SMALL NATIONS.

We haven't heard any of the pro-English boosters on this side answer or deny the charges of Arthur Griffith, who in addressing the Irish Parliament this past week said that the British Government in the past two years had undertaken the following measures, in and against Ireland: Two hundred and seventy-one raids, thirty-four meetings suppressed, ninety-nine bayonet or baton charges, 1,242 sentences, six deaths from treatment in British prisons and twelve Irish papers suppressed.

ANARCHY AND LABOR.

It is not through anarchy that the laborer can achieve his end, but by a sane progressive system of trade unionists that will not disregard the dictates of religion; by a rightful use of the ballot which will assure him the legislative measures that can safely and surely help to bring about a true democracy in industry as in politics; and finally by a gradual education in co-operative enterprises that will enable him to take an intelligent part in the ownership and management of the means of production on which his livelihood depends. So none may we hope for peace, contentment and popular prosperity.

THEY SHOULD LOSE.

English journals quite frankly admit that British rule in Ireland has not been a success. They now say that it is imperative to grant some sort of self government to Ireland. Just what form that will take they do not tell us; probably some new edition of the home rule bill that was treated as a scrap of paper by Lloyd George and his Ministers. We have no expectation that such a bill will now satisfy Ireland. Nor will it placate the friends of Ireland in America, Canada and Australia. It is to these that can be ascribed the present attitude of anxiety of the English journals. Above all these do not want to lose the friendship of America. They are in a fair way to lose it unless something is done for Ireland.

SLANDEROUS PROPAGANDA.

Again the anti-Irish propaganda is at work in this country. In a number of dailies there appeared the heading, "Wave of Crime Sweeps Erin." The basis for this sensational caption was a dispatch from some Dublin correspondent to the London Daily Mail—and thence carefully cabled to this country—which alleges that Ireland is meriting the title "Land of Assassins." Organized murder and outrage stalk through the country, this correspondent states, and scarcely a week goes by without some terrible crime. It is said a secret society is responsible for this organized crime. This society, which is strong, is denounced by the Catholic church. Placed by a community too terrified to expose the crimes, the police are helpless and it is impossible to gain conviction. Only the powerful influence of the church can prevent these crimes.

Note the broad charge and the flimsy evidence for it. Scarcely a week passes without some terrible crime. With a population of about four millions, entire freedom from crime could scarcely be expected in Ireland. But even one crime a week amid such a population—even if it were true that the average is so high—is scarcely sufficient to justify the heading in big type that a wave of crime sweeps Erin. A secret society is alleged to be behind these crimes. Organized murder and outrage stalk through the country. The society is not named, though it is strong and denounced by the Catholic church. Strange that it is not named, if that is the case. The police are helpless, and only the church can prevent these crimes. Blame the church for not preventing them—that is the obvious thing to do. Blame Ireland as much as possible, and lay the blame on the church. That is killing two birds with one stone. This is but a sample of the propaganda that is being spread in this country by press agencies that are hostile to Ireland.

We have no doubt that it is well paid for. At this time every effort is being made to bring odium upon the Irish cause. It is well to note the papers that are lending themselves to this hostile propaganda. And there are plenty of them in this country.

About the best investment for any spare change you have is a Victory bond. All Uncle Sam's bonds are good. The Victory bond will be the best ever. Be an optimist and go to it.

It looks like the people have just begun to wake up to the gross hypocrisy of the prohibition fanaticism.

SEMINARY COLLECTION.

Tomorrow in all the Catholic churches of the Louisville diocese the annual seminary collection for the education of priests will be taken up. Following is the appeal of the Right Rev. Bishop O'Donoghue:

"Dearly Beloved Brethren: During the season of Lent, now drawing to a close, we have been meditating on the sufferings of our Blessed Lord as shown in the stations or Way of the Cross. Next week is the feast of Easter, commemorating the glorious resurrection of our Blessed Saviour. It will be a day of joy for all the faithful children of the Blessed Lord.

"As you are aware, Easter Sunday is the day appointed for the annual seminary collection, to be taken up at each of the masses on that Sunday. This is one of the important collections of the year, and we respectfully request the reverend clergy to give its announcement special attention, together with whatever explanation they may see proper. We take pleasure in mentioning that the Easter collections in past years have been uniformly generous, and for this we are sincerely thankful.

PASSION PLAY LECTURE.

During the holy season of Passiontide Brother Benjamin, of St. Xavier's College, has been illustrating and lecturing on the "Passion Play of Oberammergau" before several large gatherings in Louisville. The first lecture, illustrated by nearly a hundred slides, was presented before the Knights of Columbus at their auditorium on Fourth street last week. Those that saw it were very well pleased with the evening's lecture, and have asked Brother Benjamin to repeat it in the near future so that the wives and children of the Knights might witness the pictures. The following day he gave it before the student body, faculty and friends of Cedar Grove Academy, and on Monday repeated it before the faculty of the Presentation Academy. On Tuesday the Sisters and inmates of the Home of the Good Shepherd on Bank street had the opportunity of witnessing this silent religious drama, and under the auspices of the War Activities Knights of Columbus Brother Benjamin spoke and gave the pictorial lecture Thursday before the soldiers at Camp Zachary Taylor.

MADE FRIENDS HERE.

Gen. John P. McMahon, formerly commander of Camp Zachary Taylor, has been placed in charge of the army recruiting offices in Philadelphia. His appointment to this position, it is believed, will make him ex-officio head of all recruiting work in the district. Gen. McMahon, who has been on sick leave for two months at French Lick, left Tuesday to assume his new duties. He reported at Camp Zachary Taylor last week. While on overseas service in France Gen. McMahon commanded the Fifth Regular Division of the army, which saw fighting in the Argonne Forest and in Belleau Wood. The assignment of Gen. McMahon to Philadelphia will place him near his son, Major John E. McMahon, Jr., who is commandant of the Officers' Training School at Princeton University. Gen. McMahon made a legion of friends during his short stay in Louisville, and every soldier found him his friend.

START BOXING SHOWS.

Starting this month the Knights of Columbus are going to regularly conduct shows in the gymnasium of the New York Athletic Club for soldiers and sailors. Frank Smith, Chairman of the New York Chapter War Activities Committee of the C. C., has made arrangements whereby boxing entertainments will be furnished for gobs and doughboys at the big Fifty-ninth Street Club. This will be the only place in the city outside of the hospitals where boxing shows are held.

JOE HIGGINS IN STATES.

News was received here Wednesday night that Joseph N. Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Higgins and a member of the Kentucky Irish American force, has landed at New York and was sent to Camp Merritt, N. J. Joe is a member of the famous Fifth Regiment, United States Marines, who obtained world fame and made a page for themselves in history by stopping the German rush on Paris last July in the battle of Chateau Thierry. In that battle our young marines not only stopped the rush of the German army, but turned them back in utter rout, this battle in the opinion of army critics being the turning point of the war in favor of the Allies. Just previous to the close of the war Joe received a wound in the shoulder from bursting shrapnel and was in the hospital for several months. He has been overseas for a year and wrote recently that he will be content to get back to the land of peace, liberty and happiness and will want nothing more exciting for the next few months than to play the winner of the Kentucky Derby. Joe is sure of a real welcome from the folks back home and the many friends who are proud of our young marine.

INTO ETERNAL REST.

Mrs. Ellen Hallinan's death on Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Dougherty, 3809 West Broadway, removes a well-known and lovable Catholic woman from this community. All through life her genial disposition and inclination to be of service to others won her the friendship of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Hallinan was seventy-eight years old, and is survived by her husband, Thomas Hallinan. Her funeral took place Thursday morning from St. Ignace church, Rev. Father Patrick Walsh celebrating the requiem high mass. A tribute was the presence of so many old neighbors and associates.

MILLIONS FOR CATHEDRAL.

Disposing of an estate estimated at nearly $5,000,000, the will of Thomas O'Neill, Baltimore dry goods merchant, provides that one-third of the residue of his possessions be used for the erection of a hospital and that the remainder of the residue, estimated at several millions, be given to Cardinal Gibbons as the nucleus of a fund for the erection of a new Cathedral in that city. Loyola College, Baltimore, received $300,000 for a church to be built at Guilford, a suburb of the city.

EGGS AT EASTER.

The use of Easter eggs is common to all Christendom, and seems to be a symbolic tradition of the primitive church. It is explained in various ways. The most probable theory is that because of the phenomenon of hatching it was chosen as a symbol of the resurrection. At first the Easter eggs were taken to the temple and blessed by the priest, and then distributed to one's friends and family. But after awhile they came to stand merely for a festival, when they could eat the eggs that had been denied them during Lent. It is impossible to say when the first mention is made of Easter eggs.

PERPETUATING EMPLOYMENT.

Among the special recommendations in the Bishops' labor programme calling for immediate attention is the perpetuation of the United States Employment Service. The problem of unemployment, most acute at the present moment, is unfortunately "with us always." It is too vast for any single agency and calls for the co-operation of State, municipal and private bureaus in co-ordination with the national Government service. The need of this institution becomes the greater in proportion as the army is demobilized, but even in the most normal days of peaceful industrial development an enlightened labor legislation will never dispense with this instrument. Canada has created a permanent employment system within the past year. England is continuing the service established by her years ago and has further developed and enlarged it during the war. Germany had perfected a highly efficient system previous to the outbreak of hostilities, offering every facility, including cheap meals even, to the workers who waited for a trained personnel, and most moderate railway terms where transportation was required. She will doubtless re-enter the race of world-trade with new and equally efficient exchanges. For the United States therefore to discontinue her employment service at this period would be sheer folly.

We are scattering money broadcast and squandering it in a thousand ways. Here is a real need for it. But in reality there is question of saving and not of lavishing the nation's wealth. Quick, accurate information on labor supplies and shortages, and the pooling and shifting of these supplies to meet the needs of the hour, and all this service steadily supplied to business man and worker by a trained personnel operating nationally, can save the country millions of dollars. Nothing could be more penny wise and pound foolish than to destroy this national service, which has already obtained a fair degree of efficiency, in order to save a sum which twenty-five new Postoffices would eat up tomorrow. There could be no more expensive economy than to begin our savings at the cost of industry and labor. Employment is the first condition for popular contentment.

It must be remembered too that our system of employment offices is not an idea born of war emergencies. The need was discussed for years before the possibility of the war had first darkened our national horizon. It had even been debated in Congress. Its first draft was made by the Bureau of Immigration in 1907, because of the urgent need of the immigrant for accurate information on his opportunities for work. Labor shortages during the war-period merely emphasized the parallel helplessness of our biggest employers to cope singlehanded with the problem of labor distribution in a national crisis. It is the purpose of the Department of Labor that the Employment Service shall render equal facilities to management and labor and observe perfect neutrality in any case of dispute.—America.

HOWARDSTOWN.

The Rev. Engelbert Schmitt, pastor of St. Ann's parish at Howardstown, has started a movement for the erection and furnishing of a residence in connection with the parochial school there, and is now receiving subscriptions. Members of the congregation are very desirous of securing a number of Sisters as teachers for the children, and it is expected that the building will be ready before September, as the school can begin with the fall session. Father Schmitt's undertaking is a laudable one and should meet with success.

The DUPLEX OIL COMPANY holds a contract for the purchase of certain properties in Ross Creek and Big Sinking fields on which there is now flush production of 250 barrels per day. On these properties there are now two rigs drilling, and this production can be increased to 500 barrels per day in a short period. We will complete two wells this week.

WILL DIE HERE.

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes Outlines Basic Principles From Which Any Lasting After the War Reconstruction Must Proceed.

The True Remedy For Violent Social and Industrial Unrest Is a Return to the Principles of Christian Charity and Forbearance.

FACE OF THE CHURCH IS AND WILL REMAIN SET AGAINST BOLSHEVISM

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes in an interview outlined the basic principles from which, he feels, any lasting after-the-war reconstruction must proceed. His remedy for violent social and industrial unrest is a return to the principles of Christian charity and forbearance. "The Sermon on the Mount," he said, "is still the ultimate rule of all human existence." The face of his church, he said, is set against the Bolshevism which has Europe in ferment. He believes that the rights of the individual are in jeopardy and must be defended.

"Radicalism," declared the Archbishop, "is striking at the very roots of what we have been fighting for—namely individual liberty within its proper channels." The Archbishop has no fear that extreme radicalism will get any foothold in America. The interview took place in the audience room in the rectory of old St. Stephen's church, where the Archbishop continues to reside in extreme democratic simplicity.

"You know you are talking to a churchman," he said, "and my opinion may be a narrow one. But I feel that all these questions carry us back to Christ and the message which He brought to the world. The message wasn't understood in his day. But He didn't come for any one age or people or race, but for all races and all peoples and all countries; so I feel that in his life and death and his teachings and example we have the solution for all of men's difficulties. For after we have got to remember that trouble and sorrow and vexation come always with a violation of the law—be it natural, physical or spiritual. In the same measure in which we violate any of the laws so in that same measure are we punished. And in the degree in which we obey the laws we have an equal measure of peace and happiness. That applies in every relation of life, to the tiller of the soil, the chemist, the merchant, the banker. We talk about man's conquest of the air. Man triumphs there because he studies the laws of the air and gravitation, and the more he knows about those laws and the more closely he conforms to them, the safer is his flight. And even then he is dependent upon the mechanic who made his machine, for if the mechanic does not comply with the laws of mechanics, and any of the airman will result in disaster."

"The application of this principle is that all of the world's troubles have resulted from the failure to observe the plain laws set down for man's guidance in his relations with his fellow men. All government is based upon the maintenance of a perfect balance between authority and obedience. Where those laws are observed, where authority overrides those from whom obedience is required, or those who are governed fail to respect the rights of legitimate authority, disaster inevitably follows. There are laws between ruler and people, between nation and nation, between man and man, and violations of these laws have been the causes of the greatest disasters in human history, as we have seen. These laws spring from the nature of things, and any attempt on the part of man to change them will result in trouble, confusion and disaster. Anything that attacks our present concepts of society, which are based on authority and obedience—on the idea that there must be some to govern and some to serve—the principle that authority is from God and we must obey those who represent it, either in the State or religion—anything that would subvert or overthrow that concept is in the nature of a subversion of human society. Any movement that tends to regulate justly the relations in human society between government and people, however, deserves consideration and praise and adoption. If it be found to be necessary and adaptable. "We Catholics," continued the Archbishop, "regard the Church as a perfect society. The State is likewise a perfect society. The family is a perfect unit. We start out on that. It is axiomatic. Every individual who is included in any one of those groups in whatever capacity has first of all his own individual personality, and is entitled to his full rights as an individual and protection in them. He gets all his rights and privileges through his relation to one or the other of those groups and it is the duty of the church and of society to see that those rights and privileges, which are God-given, are maintained. I am speaking in broad generalities," explained the Archbishop, "because I believe the situation we face must be dealt with according to broad, fundamental principles." His strong, finely moulded face was alight with interest in his subject. He rose and paced the floor for several minutes before he resumed.

"On the other hand," he continued, "there are principles of mercy and charity which are to be applied in the treatment of the individual or the group who, by violating the laws which I have outlined, create disturbances in society and upset the balance. These principles, which must only be applied insofar as is necessary for the preservation of society in punishment of offenders, are in the hands of, and must be applied by, every one who feels himself a part of the community—the universities, the churches, the schools, the capitalists, men of brains, whoever and whatever they are, as agents to society, must co-operate in applying these principles and thus bringing about the readjustment of society."

"These," said the Archbishop after another thoughtful pause, "are principles underlying the whole programme for social reconstruction of the Committee on Special War Activities of the National War Council. It is in this spirit that we must approach the problems which we face. It is not a matter of discharging the task to which he was assigned. He is entitled to it. Somehow, I feel that the general good requires that the matter be looked at now without delay. Work is a great corrective of all kinds of unrest. We do not want the nation to appear unappreciative or ungrateful. Much more do we want to encourage idleness and the evils which follow in its wake. "There is much that can be done. There are great national improvements which can be opened up, such as the reclamation of waste land, reforestation, new roads, shipbuilding—anything so that we may say to the soldier who can't get back his old job: 'Here at least is a job at honest, decent wages, in which you can employ yourself and support your family until something better turns up. I don't mean this to be a permanent policy on the part of the Government, but just a temporary plan by which the soldiers may be provided for until they have found their feet again. It is a grave problem. Great harm may result from turning loose these millions of young men without any provision being made for their immediate future. I should say that if we would avoid those perils of unrest which we have been discussing this is one of the avenues of trouble which should quickly be closed up."

to be entertained if they are feasible and adaptable and are not in violation of any of the laws to which I have referred."

"Do you think revolutionary movements are likely to make any headway in the United States?" "I feel that any revolutions which may be brought about in our country will be orderly, whether social, economic or political. I believe there is enough and more than enough left of the old-time American spirit, which made this nation what it is—cleared the forests, built the cities and started the wheels of industry revolving—to make any revolution, social, economic or political, of the European brand impossible here. We are passing through a period of transition. It is a difficult time, fraught with pitfalls and vexations. But I feel that the period of readjustment will be short. Peace is the great necessity. Once the thinking American people know the terms of peace and see the way clear to absorb the returning soldiers back into civil life, our capital will again utilize its wonderful resources and its genius and talents as it has done in the past. That will result in the employment of the hands and minds of labor again, and with industry humming we shall soon see and end of our troubles."

"There is one final thought," he said, "it is possible to get millions of dollars to provide for his comfort while in Europe during the war it might not have been a bad idea to get together some more millions to look out for his welfare when he arrived home after nobly discharging the task to which he was assigned. He is entitled to it. Somehow, I feel that the general good requires that the matter be looked at now without delay. Work is a great corrective of all kinds of unrest. We do not want the nation to appear unappreciative or ungrateful. Much more do we want to encourage idleness and the evils which follow in its wake. "There is much that can be done. There are great national improvements which can be opened up, such as the reclamation of waste land, reforestation, new roads, shipbuilding—anything so that we may say to the soldier who can't get back his old job: 'Here at least is a job at honest, decent wages, in which you can employ yourself and support your family until something better turns up. I don't mean this to be a permanent policy on the part of the Government, but just a temporary plan by which the soldiers may be provided for until they have found their feet again. It is a grave problem. Great harm may result from turning loose these millions of young men without any provision being made for their immediate future. I should say that if we would avoid those perils of unrest which we have been discussing this is one of the avenues of trouble which should quickly be closed up."

"The Archbishop here turned to Russia for an illustration of his point. "I think of the women of Russia," he exclaimed, "and the manner in which they have been robbed of their individuality. Think of a family not knowing its own child! Any Socialism, Bolshevism, or what you will, which strikes at the ancient idea of both the Jewish and the Christian law of paternity and family life as individual responsibility to God and properly constituted authority is to be condemned. "Do you foresee any permanent social and economic changes as a result of the present ferment?" "Who can say?" was the reply. "The programme of social reconstruction to which I have referred covers all those points. I may say, however, that any economic changes which are proposed deserve consideration and study, and the plans ought

KEYSTONERS

Pull Off Charlie Chaplin Stunt in Lil Ol' Bardstown.

Last Friday evening two policemen from Louisville, A. P. Gueda and C. S. Pfeiffer, by name, staged a detective act in Bardstown that made Sherlock Holmes look like "Timothy" of Squire Pennington's Court. These gentlemen of the law were looking for a witness who was wanted in some trial in Louisville. The witness had been located in Bardstown and they had come after him wearing the full regalia of the Keystone men and a habeas corpus smile. These men were real, honest-to-goodness sleuths and on a hot trail at that. Not mere joyriders they, but men with a mission to perform. The campaign had been planned with care and these two selected to go over the top. Silently and with untiring horn they motored to the hotel, where their unsuspecting quarry was prospecting. While the night clerk at the hotel and the night owl in the hotel lobby adjusted their gas masks the gentlemen of the law signed the register and then asked for a room. When they had retired the bystanders crowded around the book, gazed at the signatures, and ejaculated expressions of wonderment. Sam Peters, of the local force, and even Chief Tong were stricken dumb at the sight of the uniforms and culled their brains to know what Keystone men were doing in Lil Ol' Bardstown. The news spread on the sleepy town was on the quiver awaiting developments. All who spied the uniforms and read the signatures agreed that there would be something doing after the gentlemen from Louisville had rested. Bright and early Saturday morning the policemen, refreshed by sound slumber, appeared in the lobby of the hotel; the man they wanted was there also. While waiting for breakfast to be announced conversation was general, both the hunters and the hunted taking part. The hunters silently wondering where their man could be, and the hunted saying not a word to disturb their pipe dreams. In the dining room they were placed at the same table, the hunters on one side, the hunted facing them. During the meal they conversed with each other. When the man who was wanted finished his breakfast he walks to the clerk's desk, settled his bill, then got into his car and went about his business. A few minutes afterward the sleuths inquired of the clerk, Hubert Hinkle, where they could find Mr. So-and-So, stating that they wanted to take him back to Louisville in their car. When the clerk, who is also Deputy Sheriff, heard who they wanted he informed the policemen that they had talked to him before breakfast, sat at the same table with him during breakfast, and then saw him get into his car. They were dumbfounded. Mr. Hinkle pointed out the name on the hotel register, showed that he had settled and gone, leaving no word when he would return. The disappointed cops tried to pick up the lost trail, but could not. Then slowly and sadly they climbed into their car and returned to Louisville.

WOULD BE HEARTENING.
Editor Kentucky Irish American: Lockport, Ky., April 13, 1919.—In an article in the Courier-Journal of Thursday, 3rd inst., comes "Irish Catholic" to the defense of the Y. M. C. A. Since then I've seen the same article in a number of other newspapers. What gets me is that, after such a hearty word for the Y. M. C. A. this Irish Catholic should fail to give his name. Certainly no one should be ashamed of such a noble spirit, and we sincerely hope he will come out in the good old open, for it is good to know a man who can say a good word for an organization that is known to be unfriendly to his faith. At least I understand that a Catholic can not hold office in the Y. M. C. A. Anyway, hurrah for "Irish Catholic!" He has done something! May we hope there is some one in the other camp big enough to follow his fine example. It surely would be heartening to see a spontaneous outburst from some non-Catholic or anti-Catholic in praise of the great work done by the Knights of Columbus. But—the Irish in a crisis! Here comes "Irish Catholic," all by himself and no one looking, and goes over the top and doesn't think enough of the performance to hand out his name. Glory ho! Some one has said, "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick." Common justice in the daily press would be a startling but pleasant sight, not to mention that it would be good for sore eyes and a troubled heart and would make for a world of betterment all around.

MEDAL FOR DUVAL.
George L. Duval, of New York City, has been awarded the Laetare Medal for 1919, for his many deeds of Christian philanthropy. He has contributed more than half a million dollars to various causes. Mr. Duval was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. in 1860, and received a liberal Catholic education. He is one of the most prominent figures in the export trade circles of the nation's metropolis. Nearly all of his philanthropy has been devoted to the honor of Mary Immaculate. It was through his financial assistance that the great need in Brooklyn of a preparatory seminary for boys, aspiring to the priesthood was fulfilled in the present Seminary of the Immaculate Conception. The Mission of the Immaculate Conception on Staten Island has been handsomely benefited by his liberality, and the Catholic University not long ago received from him a large sum for the endowment of a chair for the exposition of the

SAVE MORE.
The United States Department of Labor did not have the victory long in mind when it wrote one of its slogans to the millions of workers, but it could not possibly have written two sentences that more directly pointed to it than the following:
"Make sure that in a few years from now you will have the reward of the extra hard work you are doing today. Save your excess wages!"
There is no organization anywhere that is in more direct touch with labor or that has its welfare more at heart than the Department of Labor. Consequently its advice is worth heeding.

HOLY NAME POLICEMAN.
Members of the Holy Name Society in the Police Department of New York attended mass last Sunday morning at St. Patrick's Cathedral and received holy communion in a body. There were 1,578 patrolmen and officers present and mass was said by Rev. John J. Coogan, chaplain of the society. Archbishop Hayes and Monsignor Donzano, Papal Delegate, were present, the latter bestowing the Pontifical blessing.

RECENT DEATHS.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Martha A. Burch, widow of the late Dr. J. D. Burch, was held from the Cathedral with requiem high mass. Deceased was sixty-four years old and the mother of Mrs. C. T. Greenwell, 1208 South Twenty-second street, with whom she had been making her home.

A death that brought sorrow to the hearts of many friends and relatives was that of Mary Frances, the beloved daughter of Frances and the late Michael J. Maloney, who passed from this life Sunday evening at her home, 524 South Preston street. After the funeral the remains were taken to Elizabethtown for burial.

Mrs. Mary Duffy, seventy-six years old and for many years a respected resident of this city and member of St. Louis Bertrand's church, passed peacefully away at her home, 642 West Magnolia. Surviving her are a son, Martin Duffy, and a daughter, Mrs. John Lawless. The funeral was held Tuesday morning, when many old friends paid their last earthly tribute.

Gloom pervaded Holy Name parish Sunday evening when Death's summons came to Annie Alma Vize, beloved wife of Robert J. Vize, at the family residence, 2925 South Third street. She was twenty-seven years old and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of acquaintances. The funeral services were held at Holy Name church Tuesday morning, after which the remains were taken to Springfield for interment.

Mrs. Mary Thornton Hayes, sixty-eight years old, a member of one of the pioneer families of Kentucky, died early Tuesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hayes Walford, 1238 South Third street. She had been in poor health for some time. Mrs. Hayes was the widow of John A. Hayes, President of the R. J. Thornton Tea and Coffee Company. She was an active member of the Daughters of the Confederacy. The funeral took place from St. Mary Magdalen church, of which she had always been a devout member.

The death of Mrs. John B. Meyer, of 108 South Nineteenth street, after an illness of only a few days came as a great shock to the many friends of this popular young matron. Mrs. Meyer was prominent in Catholic social and parish affairs and took quite an active interest in the Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., holding office at different times. Besides her husband, John B. Meyer, and three little girls, Ellen, Catherine and Juanita, she is survived by two sisters, Lillian and Margaret Callahan, and two brothers, Thomas and John Callahan. The funeral took place from St. Patrick's church Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

LARKIN SAILS FOR EUROPE.

William P. Larkin, in charge of the New York K. of C. office, sailed for Europe last Saturday. Chairman Larkin carried to the Pope a message from the Knights of Columbus. He will then return to France, where as Director of Knights of Columbus Overseas Activities he will survey the order's war work. Director Larkin, from K. of C. headquarters, directed the purchase and transportation of the huge quantities of K. of C. supplies intended for our forces overseas. His task in this field called for skill and energy of the highest order, but the splendid service that K. of C. Secretaries rendered to our soldiers in the matter of supplying them with many "creature comforts" is evidence that he solved this big problem. Now that the soldiers overseas have more spare time, the question of supplying them with entertainment and recreational facilities looms bigger than ever, and Larkin wants to study this phase of the situation at first hand so he may be better able to judge how to gauge shipments of K. of C. supplies abroad. He will visit France, Italy, England, Belgium and Germany while abroad.

BASEBALL OPENING.

The American Association will open its season next Wednesday, and judging from the interest being displayed the league is in for a banner year. Especially in Louisville has the interest in baseball been awakened, the attendance at the Louisville-Pittsburgh games Saturday and Sunday being the best at exhibition contests in many years. The young blood secured by "Cap" Neal and Pat Flaherty is responsible in a measure for this, as the fans are sure to see games with a lot of "pop" instead of the stereotyped ball played by the old heads, who will not take the chances in a game that a youngster will. Milwaukee will open the season with the Colonels, and with Dixie Davis and Koebe for a battery the team should begin with a game on the right side of the ledger. With a shortstop and about two more pitchers Louisville will be in a good position to start off winning. Joe McCarthy at second is playing the best game of his career and Bescher, Hendryx and Acosta in the outfield outclass many outfielders in the major leagues.

FINDING THE MISSING.

Since the final casualty list was issued by the War Department there has been a notable increase of inquiries regarding "missing" soldiers at the Knights of Columbus Missing Soldier Bureau, conducted at 461 Fourth avenue, New York City. Relatives and friends of soldiers, relieved at not finding in the casualty lists names of those sought, are turning to the Knights of Columbus' bureau in an endeavor to locate "missing" men. Up to date the K. of C. bureau has proved a 100 per cent. efficient, having finally located every soldier or sailor sought. Leo P. Begley, in charge of the bureau, expects to maintain this record.

ALL SHOULD AID.

The efforts of the Knights of Columbus to find employment for the returning soldiers and sailors should appeal to every Catholic and all should lend their aid in so worthy a cause.

ROBERTS, HAROLD W. (1013943) Corporal, Co. A, 344th Battalion, Tank Corps. (Deceased).

FOR conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy in the Montrebeau Woods, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

Corporal Roberts, a tank driver, was moving his tank into a clump of bushes to afford protection to another tank which had been disabled. The tank slid into a shell hole, ten feet deep, filled with water, and was immediately submerged. Knowing that only one of the two men in the tank could escape, Corporal Roberts said to the gunner, "Well, only one of us can get out, and out you go," whereupon he pushed his companion thru the back door of the tank and was himself drowned.

NEGROES ERECT MEMORIAL.

Eight years ago Sister Mary Hilda, of the Cincinnati mother house of the Sisters of Charity, was sent by her Superior to the colored Catholic school of Memphis, Tenn. A year ago she died, laboring almost to the day of her death among her little charges. At the time of the death of this good woman the colored people of the community realized that a great factor in the development of the race was taken from them, while the community at large had commenced to recognize the colored boys and girls who had been trained under Sister Mary Hilda's guidance by certain unmistakable signs of character and deportment. This humble servant of Christ came not to receive but to give. She gave generously of all her wonderful store of piety, patience and mental endowment, together with her physical strength, working among the poor of the school during the severe winter of 1917 and 1918, when she became an easy prey to pneumonia, of which she died. The colored people of the community, Catholic and Protestant alike, determined that her memory shall be kept green, and as a testimony of their devotion to the good Sister Hilda have erected a beautiful two-manual pipe organ in St. Anthony's church as a lasting memorial to her. It is probably the first time in the history of the negro that he has erected a monument to any member of the white race, and that such a monument should be built to an humble

Sister of Charity speaks well for the future of Catholic endeavor among the colored people.

WHAT SUEZ DOES.

Although the Suez canal is only ninety-nine miles long, it reduces the distance from England to India by sea nearly 4,000 miles.
